| What OTC is buildingOTC is extending its Summer Alliance screening from the UK, Australia and New Zealand into Canada, with a clearer distinction between city-based homestay routes, residence-based university-campus routes, English improvement and future-facing academic or leadership demand. | Why CanadaFor many families, Canada is attractive because it combines North American campus exposure with stronger safety perception, structured supervision, practical English immersion and a more balanced family-facing tone than some higher-pressure summer markets. |

Initial Canada Focus

| Tamwood CampsUBC / UTM / Future of Work                    | Strong campus-based Canada routes with clear age segmentation, residence structure, English & Culture positioning and a more advanced Future of Work academy route. |
| CISS TorontoGeneral English / Global Leadership            | A very usable Toronto residence-based route for families who want University of Toronto atmosphere, supervision clarity and city immersion packaged together.       |
| Summer at UBC – operated by ILSCCISS + ILSC provider model | Especially relevant for school groups, family referrals and more formal route building because the operating structure and package inclusions are clearly stated.   |
| ILSC Junior CampsToronto / UBC / Vancouver                 | Strong junior camp structure with both homestay and residence variants; useful for younger students and more careful first-time Canada screening.                   |

What direct cooperation would improve

Cleaner family-facing positioning · better separation between homestay and residence expectations · more accurate custodial / consent explanation · better pre-screening before enquiries reach provider admissions and registration teams · more credible progression from secondary-agent handling toward direct partnership.

Current cooperation boundary

OTC currently approaches Canada routes conservatively. Some enquiries may begin via secondary-agent or open registration channels, while direct cooperation is discussed only where provider response, family fit and route clarity make it appropriate. No public promise is made regarding exclusive representation, guaranteed commission terms or direct appointment without written confirmation.

Next step

OTC seeks a practical first discussion on referral flow, suitable student profile, custodial / welfare handling, family screening quality and whether selected Canada summer routes may support a more direct cooperation model.
